

DIGNITY THROWN TO THE WINDS

At a Session of Justice Rogers' Court
Thursday, When the Squire and Attorney Boyce

WERE INVOLVED IN A MELEE

Of Words That Verged Closely to Something More Serious, When Officers Interfered.

The hearing of Elsie Gray and Jack Forsythe at the county jail office yesterday afternoon closed with a breezy show of hostilities. The actors were a disciple of Blackstone and a dispenser of guardians of the peace the cement floor might have been decked with a liquid crimson carpet. There was contending with loud and angry words and the echoes floated far out from the massive brick building and filtered through the barred windows to the peaceful street below. Pedestrians plodding through the snow looked up, and a small boy stood ready at a nearby fire alarm box.

The panned-up prisoners exulted over the prospect. Their eyes gladdened and their pulses tingled with the delight of expectancy. But the clash was averted. Peace settled on the kopjes and her sister, amity, squatted on the veldts.

Two well known characters in police circles are Elsie Gray and Jack Forsythe. On Tuesday evening, it is alleged, they obtained $2 from Druggist Waterman, at his pharmacy at the corner of Market and Eleventh streets, and later attempted to get $3 more. Forsythe representing himself as a drummer for Bremer & Mable. On a warrant sworn out before Squire Rogers, they were charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, and at the conclusion of their hearing yesterday afternoon they were held for the grand jury, bond in each case being $500, which neither could furnish.

Then it was that the fun began. Gray was defended by Attorney S. O. Boyce, who made a great fight for his client. On hearing the squire's decision holding Gray for the grand jury, Mr. Boyce pointedly remarked: "Thank you."

"You're perfectly welcome," was Squire Rogers' reply.

Mr. Boyce evidently did not catch what the squire said, for in an instant he said, with some feeling: "What's that?" And advancing toward the justice he cried: "I've a good mind to smash you." An uproar followed, both men losing their temper and saying sundry unkind things to each other to the edification of the spectators. Finally words were unequal to the occasion, whereupon Jailer McCormick and Prosecuting Attorney Meyer rushed between the two men thus averting serious trouble.

The stormy scene was ended by Jailer McCormick's ultimatum that the argument was over. Then the crowd filed out and the iron doors were swung to.

DEWEY'S TROUBLES.

All Was Not Lovely on the Admiral's
Recent Southern Trip—Atlanta's
Reasons for Declining to Receive the Hero of Manila.

Since Admiral Dewey's visit to Wheeling in February, discussion of his manner of responding to the city's entertainment has been general, and, of course, there is a great divergence of opinion. In this connection, the following account of the refusal of Atlanta to receive Admiral Dewey on his recent Southern trip, taken from the Atlanta Journal, is interesting to Wheeling people:

Atlanta gave Admiral Dewey the high ball on his southern trip which has just ended at Macon.

In parliamentary language the city officials said of the distinguished hero of Manila Bay that she liked him, but didn't want him. The chance to even up with the admiral for accepting a royal invitation to visit Atlanta several months ago, and then declining the invitation at the eleventh hour came Atlanta's way three weeks ago, while Dewey was arranging his trip to Savannah and Macon, and she proceeded very promptly to pay back. In a measure, the debt she owed him for throwing her down.

When Dewey decided to come south on an invitation from Macon and Savannah, members of the Georgia delegation in Washington approached him, or were approached on the subject of the admiral visiting Atlanta.

Just who did the approaching is not known as yet, but it is known that telegrams came from Congressman Livingston, Senators Clay and Bacon, addressed to numerous prominent Atlantians, including Mayor Woodward.

"Do you want Dewey to visit Atlanta now?" is the burden of the messages.

"We do not want Dewey now," is the reply which went back to Washington.

That is why Dewey's party turned back to Macon, retraced their route to Savannah and Jacksonville and returned to Washington by a circuitous route, giving Atlanta a wide berth on the southern trip.

Mayor Woodward said that Admiral Dewey got no official invitation to visit Atlanta at this time because he treated Atlanta discourteously in her former invitation, and furthermore, the mayor said he considered that Dewey insulted Flag Lieutenant Brumby, living and dead; the insult living being tendered when the invitation to visit Brumby's home was accepted by the admiral, and then refused; the insult to the dead coming when Dewey refused to attend the funeral of his comrade in arms and his companion on the trip to the home of Dewey, in Vermont.

In the light of the telegram and the replies there is no possible doubt that Dewey was willing to come to Atlanta, and that Atlanta refused to invite him. The question in the public mind now is: Has Atlanta evened up matters with Dewey, or does she still owe him something for his conduct towards her last summer?

It will be remembered that shortly after Dewey arrived in America from Manila, Atlanta sent a delegation representing the city to Washington to extend a cordial invitation to the hero to visit Manila. In warm terms the invitation was accepted.

The delegation, headed by Mayor Woodward, returned to Atlanta and preparations for an elaborate reception of Dewey were begun and almost completed. Thousands of dollars were subscribed by the city and the citizens to be spent in the welcome of the hero. The programme was that he should stay in Atlanta for the big reception, and then accept Brumby's invitation to visit his home.

On the day before the expected arrival of Dewey, a telegram came from the hero, saying he would be unable to make the visit. Further, than to relate that the admiral was indisposed, the message gave no reason for the declaration of the visit, and to this day no other reason has been assigned for the alleged discourtesy.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the replies to the telegrams asking if Atlanta wanted Dewey were unanimously unfavorable. The public did not hesitate to speak of the conduct of Dewey in condemnatory terms, and the public expressions on that line have not yet been allayed.

"The telegrams came to Atlanta from Congressman Livingston and Senators Clay and Bacon," said Mayor Woodward, when asked concerning the refusal to invite Dewey. "When I was approached in the matter I stated in plain language that Admiral Dewey would get no official invitation to visit Atlanta at this time, because I considered that he had acted discourteously toward Atlanta in the former invitation."

"He refused to come to Atlanta after accepting our royal invitation, and after we had made extensive preparations to receive him. I consider, too, that he insulted Lieutenant Brumby, living and dead. For these reasons I stated that Atlanta, officially, didn't want Dewey here, and that so far as I was concerned if he came he would be received simply as an ordinary citizen passing through."

BRIEF MENTIONINGS.

Events in and About the City Given in a Nutshell.

PERSONS changing their place of residence April 1 will confer a favor by notifying the Intelligencer Office, so they may get their favorite paper without interruption.

Opera House to-night—"The Dairy Farm."

Grand this evening—Macaulay-Patton company.

The board of county commissioners' committee on finance met yesterday afternoon and audited bills.

Rev. John McCue will hold a series of meetings at the Bethel Mission, 12 Twentieth street, beginning to-night. All are invited.

A marriage license was issued yesterday by Clerk Robertson, to John A. Fife, aged twenty-seven, and Abbie C. Melville, aged twenty-two, of Fife, of Ohio.

In another column, Postmaster Wiles advertises for bids for furnishing the government building with fuel, lights, water, ice, etc. Bids will close April 20 at 2 p. m.

Yesterday was visitors' day at Ritchie school. The pupils made a fine exhibition of their school work. To-day a similar exhibition will be given at the Ritchie annex.

The criminal court was not in session yesterday. Sam Miller, charged with robbing W. H. Anderson, of Harriaville, Ohio, of $84, will be on.

An oil lease from E. R. and G. A. White to the Short Creek Oil & Gas Company, for 115 acres in Liberty district, was recorded yesterday in Clerk Robertson's office.

The snow retarded traffic to a slight extent on the Benwood line of the Wheeling Railway Company yesterday, but everything worked smoothly after the snow plow was given a whirl.

Centre school children entertained with a fine programme of exercises yesterday afternoon, and "visitors' day" will be observed this afternoon at Webster school and the high school.

There will likely be a large congregation at St. Luke's P. E. church this evening, to hear the sermon by Archdeacon B. M. Spurr, of Moundsville. Rev. Mr. Spurr is an earnest and interesting speaker.

Yesterday, at Crafton, Pa., occurred the death of Mrs. A. B. Daily, 67, in the seventy-fourth year of her age. The deceased was the mother of Mr. A. B. Daily, Jr., general manager of the Wheeling Natural Gas Company.

Officer James Larkins earned the gratitude of Market street pedestrians yesterday, for the service he rendered in removing the snow and slush from the Fourteenth street crossing, from Schnepf's to House & Herrmann's. He handled the shovel like a veteran.

Subpoenas were issued yesterday for the witnesses in the case of the late Moorey and Friday, charged with the murder of James Hervey, near Elm Grove recently. Twenty-two witnesses are called. The trial opens April 3, and will attract general attention throughout the community.

Yesterday afternoon, from the residence of Mr. L. J. Bayha, South Broadway, Island, occurred the funeral of his son, G. Eugene Bayha, who died this week in New York. The services were conducted by Rev. Samuel Schwarm, of the First English Lutheran church. There was a large attendance of friends of the family. The interment was private.

The many warm friends in this city of Mr. Edgar R. Stewart, of Morgantown, are greatly interested in the race he is making for the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney of Monongalia county. Mr. Stewart possesses three things his friends are banking on him as a winner—energy, ability and ambition. His legal qualifications are beyond question.

Next Monday will open bright for several trades, owing to the increase of wages which goes into effect on that day. The tin workers will be benefited to the extent of a 4 per cent advance, the house painters will get 33 per cent, instead of 22 1/2, and the carpenters go to work under a new scale, which stipulates that the average wages of their craft shall be $2.50 a day; previously it was all the way from $1.75 to $2.25. A pleasing feature about the improved situation is that it was brought about without any clash, except in the case of the painters, who were on strike for the brief space of two days. The advance to the tin workers is due to the increase in the selling price of the product, by which their scale is governed.

FRESH Jack Fish, Shad and Eels, at A. Yahrling's, 1004 Market street. Telephone 886.

MY Stock of Fancy Suitings is the largest and cheapest in the city. C. W. SEABRIGHT'S SON, The Tailor, Twenty-second and Main Streets.

GILL IN BELLAIRE.

The Over-the-River Congressman
Comes on From Washington.

HE WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

At Bellaire Next Week, When He Will be Re-Nominated by Acclamation—Mr. Gill Declines to Express a Preference for Delegates to the National Republican Convention.
Good Men Should be Selected.

Congressman J. J. Gill dropped into Bellaire yesterday morning on his way home from Washington and intended to spend a few hours calling upon friends there, at Bridgeport and Martin's Ferry, but it was such a disagreeable day that he went direct to Steubenville after a few hours in Bellaire.

Mr. Gill is home to attend the convention at Bellaire next week that will re-nominate him for his first full term—he is now serving the unexpired term of the lamented Danford. Every county in the district is for him and his nomination will be by acclamation. Each of the four counties outside of Mr. Gill's home county of Jefferson, has one or more candidates for the honors to be awarded next Wednesday in the shape of delegates to the national convention, two of which will be sent from that district and two alternates, and one presidential elector for the Sixteenth Ohio district will be named. These honors will go to Belmont, Carroll, Harrison and Monroe counties, and possibly an alternate to Jefferson.

Mr. Gill, when asked by the Intelligencer man, who would probably be the delegates to the national convention, made short answers, saying: "The convention will determine that. The only interest I have in the matter is, I presume, every other man's interest that the district will sustain its reputation by selecting representative men."

There can be no doubt of a very general feeling throughout the district that the representatives of the national convention should be men of such character and well known devotion to the Republican cause and President McKinley as to need only the mention of their names to inspire confidence among the people of the district and the leaders of the party everywhere. The congressman expressed abiding faith in the people of the district doing the proper thing at the right time, but positively declined to express himself farther than quoted above.

Asked about matters pending in Congress, he said that many interesting and important questions were engaging the attention of both houses, and that considerable diversity of views existed between the house and the senate on the warmest question on hand, and that that was the Porto Rico tariff, but he had confidence that they would ultimately agree upon some measure satisfactory to the great mass of Republicans. The measure for the government of Hawaii, the Nicaragua canal bill and other important matters of more than ordinary interest to the people, were pressing for attention, he said, and would soon be taken up. With this Mr. Gill bowed himself away to shake hands with some of the numerous friends who were standing about.

HEINLEIN'S FRIENDS

In Belmont County Insist He Will Be Selected as One of the Delegates to the National Republican Convention.

The friends of Hon. J. C. Heinlein, in Belmont county, and especially those in Pease township, are his enthusiastic supporters for delegate to the national Republican convention at Philadelphia. Before the meeting of the county committee recently, Senator Archer was mentioned in this connection by some of his friends, but the victory of the Heinlein forces in the committee was instrumental in causing the withdrawal of Senator Archer's name. At the committee meeting, it will be remembered, Mr. Heinlein's friends won out by a vote of six to five, and he was given the privilege of naming Belmont's delegation to the congressional convention at Bellaire, which selects two delegates and two alternates to the Philadelphia convention. After the committee meeting it was supposed there would be no opposition to Mr. Heinlein, but this week the name of Mr. G. E. Bradfield, of Barnesville, has been sprung. The friends of Heinlein assert that Bradfield will be unable to secure a majority of the delegation from Warren township (Barnesville), and for that reason do not believe his candidacy will be formidable.

The Intelligencer has already spoken of Mr. Bradfield's fitness for the honor of representing the district at Philadelphia. In justice to Mr. Heinlein it can be stated that he is just as worthy from every point of view; it is generally conceded that he would honor himself and the district in the convention that is to renominate Ohio's favored son.

Knights of the Mystic Chain.

Wheeling Castle No. 19, Knights of the Mystic Chain, was formally instituted at Odd Fellows' hall last evening. Supreme Commander Joseph Mitchell and Supreme Recording and Corresponding Scribe John J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, were present, as were also Select Commander J. W. Dayton, of Keyser; Select Scribe J. J. Jackson, Select Treasurer George Hopwood, Select Past Commander John Cardona, Select Trustee J. R. Bryson and others.

The officers of the new Castle had been selected at a previous meeting, and were duly installed, as follows: Chaplain, E. M. Pierce; commander, W. H. Brooks; vice commander, Lee F. Dobbs; recording and corresponding scribe, R. R. Bryson; financial scribe, J. F. Williams; treasurer, T. J. Cole; marshal, W. H. Gling; inside guard, Fred Reineke; outside guard, Walter Smith; trustees, W. T. Mitchell, William Marshall, Charles Frank.

Speeches were made by the visitors, and a good send-off was given the new Castle.

Bowling.

Names of teams will be received for Brunswick Bowling League. Address all communications to A. J. Tolbert, No. 1140 Market street, City.

Society.

Misses Dorrie Hubbard and Elizabeth Doddridge will be at home this evening to their friends, between the hours of 8 and 11, at the residence of the former, on North Front street.

Miss Edith Moise very delightfully entertained the Island Club last evening, at her home on Fourteenth street. Four tables, at which the contests were thoroughly enjoyable and very interesting, were kept going all evening. The winners of the first prizes were Miss Emma Hamilton and Dr. Charles Dittman, and the second prizes were awarded to Miss Grace Nicoll and Mr. A. Thurman Selby.

A very pretty wedding ceremony occurred last night at the home of Mrs. A. L. Pelly, in Benwood, the contracting parties being Miss Margaret Drennan, who for a year has made her home with Mrs. Pelly, and Mr. Samuel Wolfe, of Grafton, a machinist in the Baltimore & Ohio shops at that city. The officiating minister was Rev. G. W. Bent, of the M. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe left at midnight for Grafton where they will reside, and they were followed by the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

The Thursday Afternoon Club was entertained yesterday afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Cowan, at the home of her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Cowan, on Virginia street. The club will next meet at the home of Mrs. W. M. Windsor, on Sixteenth street.

The King's Daughters' Circle of the First Presbyterian church gave an excellent entertainment in the lecture room of the church last night, and only the adverse weather conditions prevented a much larger attendance, but the superior programme attracted a large gathering, notwithstanding. The principal feature was the concert, which embraced such sterling performers as Mrs. Flora Williams, Miss Flora Stifel, Miss Margaret Harvey, Miss Sue Caldwell, Miss Letha Frazier, Miss Bessie McLean, Miss Virginia Harrison, Miss Grace Pollock, Mr. Jasper Baum and Mr. Will Kenny. A pleasing attraction was Mrs. Linna Hennig Sherman in recitations. Light refreshments were served by the King's Daughters, and the entertainment room was beautifully embellished with flowers.

The last winter rehearsal of the season of the Opera House orchestra will be given at Arion Hall Sunday evening, with the following promising programme:

March—"The Colored Major".....Henry Overture—"The Sparrow".....Barbard
"In Beauty's Bower".....Bendix
"Benjamin's Patrol".....Voelker
Selection from opera, "Lucetta Borgia".....Donizetti
Trombone Solo—Selected.....
Mr. John A. Yahn.
Waltz—"Night Larks".....Ziehrer
Descriptive Fantasia—"A. Old"
Grieg's "Midi".....Otto J. Mueller
Intermezzo—"Avant le Bal".....Reckzeh
(For string instruments only).
Medley—"Popular Sunny Tennessee"
.....Boettger

The orchestra will give its usual Sunday concert at Wheeling Park this summer, and a series of summernights-fests, one each month.

UNDERTAKERS ENTERTAINED

Last Night at the Stamm—Many Visitors Here.

The men who attend to funeral arrangements spent a busy day yesterday drinking in the knowledge poured forth by experts at the free school of embalming, and last night at the Stamm they were entertained on a large scale by Mr. Roberts, representing John Murphy & Co., of Pittsburgh, funeral furnishers. The entertainment was of an informal nature, and during the evening addresses were made by Prof. J. F. Fitzhugh, lecturer at the Pennsylvania College of Embalming, at Pittsburgh, and Wesley Kelly, of the National Casket Company, of Pittsburgh. Lunch, with liquors and cigars on the side, was furnished by the Stamm caterer. Mr. Roberts, who is a hustler in his line, has become very popular with the visiting undertakers. The embalming school will close to-day.

The following undertakers were callers yesterday, in addition to those previously named:

The Wife Exonerated.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
GOSHEN, Ind., March 29.—The coroner's autopsy and inquest in the matter of John Darnell's death to-day, exonerated the wife of the deceased, formerly Mayme Fleming, of Fairmont. West Virginia, of the grave charges made against her by the parents. The verdict was that death resulted from consumption, as there was no evidence of poisoning. As the controversy of the parents is now over, insurance and legal complications are likely.

Cleveland is Silent.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 29.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland was interviewed to-day in regard to the statement that he is in favor of the re-nomination of William J. Bryan for the presidency, and will vote for him if he runs again. Mr. Cleveland denied that he had ever given any one authority to make such a statement, but further than that he declined to give expression to his views on the subject.

IF business men and merchants consult their best interests they will advertise in the Intelligencer.

THE HEAVIEST SNOW

Of the Season Fell Yesterday, Exceeding Between Six and Eight Inches. Flood Fears Are Unwarranted as Yet.

Wheeling people, without exception, were greatly surprised when they awoke yesterday morning, and found the ground covered with snow. It began falling about 5 a. m., and continued with intermissions during the day, reaching a depth between six and eight inches. It is the heaviest snow-fall of the season.

During the day the Wheeling Railway Company had its snow-plow out on the Benwood and over-the-river divisions. It did great work. Before it had made the rounds the cars were run "any old way," and transfers along the line were the rule. All things considered, however, Manager Kerker did very well.

The ultra-nervous Islanders were fearing the snow, which was said to have been general, would bring about more than a bank-full river. These fears are so far unwarranted, and not likely there will be more than a high within-the-bank stage in the upper Ohio.
